WORLD BOOK DAY

Our World Book Day 2019 – School Workshops, Assemblies and Author Visits include...

A Visit from Bookman or Bookgirl – Character visit

The world's newest superhero, Bookman / Bookgirl, has the extraordinary power of bringing stories to life – and they'll fly into your school all set to help your pupils in doing the same. Armed just with their trusty Book Bag, they'll make an unexpected appearance at an assembly before leading classes through a series of exciting, engaging and enticing drama-based workshops (all differentiated for age). And the outcomes? Connection-making, Freeze-Frames and Talking Tableaux, illustrating key narrative moments from a host of well-loved stories!

CSI: Bookmark - Bookman Rides Again - Character visit

Already enjoyed A Visit from Bookman? Well, now you can now invite the homemade superhero back for 2019 with CSI: Bookmark - Bookman Rides Again! - After reacquainting himself with the children at an assembly, Bookman will meet each year group in turn, challenging them, in age-appropriate ways, to help him out of a pickle. He's been running a competition at his local library - but his arch-enemy has jumbled up all the entries! In a frenzy of connection-making, pupils will use their knowledge of a range of well-loved tales and, like Bookman himself, spread a love of reading before, we're sure, saving the day!

Author Visit - The Story of a Story

Join Sarah KilBride, author of the successful series Princess Evie's Ponies, and follow the story of a story, from first sketches to publication. Sarah shares her notebooks and drafts, revealing where she finds her ideas and inspiration and introduces you to the team behind her books. Using a variety of drama and writing activities, join in the fun and embark on your very own story journey, creating the beginnings of a brand new adventure.

Poetry Workshop - Character Clerihews

Clerihews are four-line, fun and descriptive poems - and so a perfect vehicle for your pupils to recall what they know of characters from the stories they love and indulge in a little speculation - all while having fun with simile, metaphor and personification! We'll show them how this poetic form works, take them through a model or two, support them as they're creating their own verses - and even give tips on performance techniques!

The Story That Saved the Day

Books and their authors really can change our lives for the better. From helping us identify and identify with people like ourselves to unleashing our imaginations to roam in fantastical worlds. Beginning with a whole-school assembly in which we share with your pupils a book that's shaped our lives, The Story That Saved the Day leads into a series of workshops in which pupils consider and/or invent other transformative stories – and celebrate them through visual art.

Scenes from Shakespeare

Shakespeare was a superb storyteller - and his stories still survive unscathed today! These exciting workshops, though, take him back to his roots - by taking a dramatic approach to his work. Working with one of our professional drama specialists, pupils will get an actor's-eye-view of one of his plays - and have a chance to taste the text too!

World Book Day Assemblies

Assemblies are a great way, of course, of launching your World Book Day celebrations - and ours are guaranteed to create a buzz about reading! So while Bookman comes complete with his own assembly, we're happy to lead whole-school assemblies at the start of a day of any of our programmes - and all at no extra cost!

"Thank you so much for the brilliant experience given to the children on Monday. Bookman was great with the children, they all thoroughly enjoyed the workshops and the assembly in the morning. Having to be creative and use their imaginations reminded them about the enjoyment of reading."
